At The Movies

A MAN MAY BE DOWN, BUT HE IS NEVER OUT

The mystic hour of twelve! Roars of thunder and crashes of lightning driving Fate's crumpled victims to God-Knows-Where.

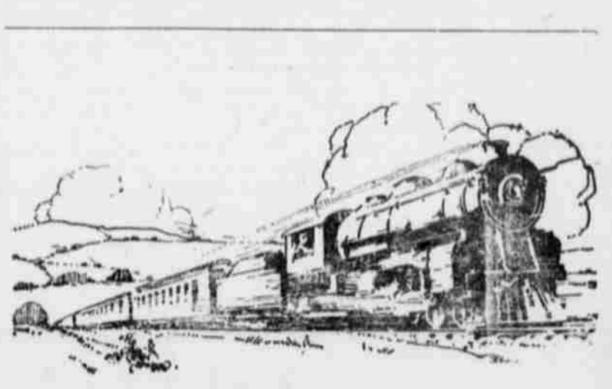

Then the saving imp of Hunger grinning and sneering and DARING Frank Melbury to quench the suffering that was crushing him body and soul.

A light in a distant window. Just one light—and in the dead of night at that mystic hour of twelve!

Like a beast after prey, he leaped forward, eager for Death if he failed in this last struggle with Fate.

What happened within the room of the single light turned back the years for Frank Melbury. He found the greatest thing in life—the LOVE of a good woman. He was in the City of Comrades—and he won Tom Moore in "The City of Comrades." Dreamland theatre, Thursday, January 22.

THE ONTARIO ARGUS

A vast amount of work now remains to be done which the intervention of war has necessarily delayed and accumulated, and the result is that a very large capital expenditure ought to be made to make up for the interruptions inevitably due to the war, and to prepare the railroads to serve adequately the increased traffic throughout the country.
 WALKER D. HINES,
 Director General of Railroads.

BROKEN BLOSSOMS

D. W. Griffith's latest work, "Broken Blossoms," was told in pictures because there are no words delicate or exquisite enough to have told it. For, after all, words are crude and cold.

The night winds swaying the bell of an old temple might have suggested the story. Incense smoke curling upward in wreaths of mauve and gray from a dim old altar might have suggested it; or the amber notes of a flute across the waters of a shadowy lake. But the story of "Broken Blossoms" never can be told in words.

It is a simple story—as simple as love and death. In some measure "The Chink and the Child," a story by Thomas Burke, suggested it—but only as a great painting might have been suggested by a Dickens character.

There are those who will see in this drama merely a piteous tragedy of sweetness and poignance. But there are artists who will see subtle but powerful symbols in the very simplicity of this narrative of sorrow. They will see Cheng Huan as a sort of Chinese Sir Galahad, the knight of the pure heart; and in Battling Burrows, the visualization of brute materiality. And as in the case of all great works of art, there is doubtless more there than the artist himself knew. At Dreamland, Monday and Tuesday, January 19 and 20.

A GOOD NIGHT'S WORK, WE'LL SAY

How would you like to be roused out of a nightmare by a fire-alarm, rush to a blazing tenement building, save a family of youngsters, then help the police raid an underworld den and then go calmly back to bed to finish your beauty sleep? "The end of a perfect day" is what Doug Fairbanks calls it, in "His Majesty, the American," his newest film. Coming to Dreamland theatre.

BARNES' MERRY MINSTRELS

The management of the Dreamland theatre of this city takes great pleasure in announcing to the public that they have been able to obtain a real treat for them in the coming of Barnes' Merry Minstrels, a white minstrel show that has such famous minstrel stars as Nate Busby, Harry Milo, Bobby and Johnny Dale, and many others of recognized talent. The Barnes' Minstrels will show the Dreamland theatre immediately after the two days engagement at the Pluney theatre in Boise. This aggregation carries their own special band and orchestra and will give a street parade and free band concert in front of the theatre before show time. A two hour program consisting of blackface comedians, singers, dancers, musical numbers, solo duets, quartettes and sextettes. To say nothing of the jazziest jazz that was ever jazzed by a real jazz orchestra and band music that will make you forget you ever had a trouble in this world.

Remember the place and the date. Dreamland theatre, Friday, January 23rd, all seats reserved. On sale at the Ontario Pharmacy Monday, January 19th. Prices, adults $1.10; children, 55c.

Work more—
 Produce more—

But we can't continue increasing our production unless we continue increasing our railroad facilities.

The farms, mines and factories cannot increase their output beyond the capacity of the railroads to haul their products.

Railroads are now near the peak of their carrying capacity.

Without railroad expansion—more engines, more cars, more tracks, more terminals—there can be little increase in production.

But this country of ours is going to keep right on growing—and the railroads must grow with it.

To command in the investment markets the flow of new capital to expand railroad facilities—and so increase production—there must be public confidence in the future earning power of railroads.

The nation's business can grow only as fast as the railroads grow.

This advertisement is published by the Association of Railway Executives.

Those desiring information concerning the railroad situation may obtain literature by writing to the Association of Railway Executives, 6 Broadway, New York.
